Carmel Taxes Remain Low

Carmel's tax rate remains the lowest for any city or town in Hamilton County and one of the lowest in the state of Indiana. Carmel's tax rate of 2.0317 was approved by the Indiana Department of Local Government Finance.

To see the true impact of the various tax rates, we will assume a resident owns a home with a market value of $200,000. Taking the mortgage and homestead deductions, along with replacement credit and homestead credit deductions, the net tax paid by a Carmel homeowner would be $2,250 compared to $2,573 in Fishers, $2,986 in Noblesville and $3,507 in Westfield. Therefore, in this example, residents in Carmel save from $323 to $1,257 in taxes by living in Carmel compared to other areas in Hamilton County.

Given the high quality of life in the city, Carmel residents receive a very good value for their tax dollars. Carmel prides itself in providing all citizens with the best service in the most cost-effective manner.

Net Tax Comparison for home of $200,000 market value

Performing Arts Center Approved

At a special meeting of the City Council on May 31, the council approved passage of the lease agreement for Carmel's Performing Arts Center. Mayor Jim Brainard indicated he was pleased that the proposal was structured so that no homeowners property taxes will be used to pay for this facility. Council members voting in favor of the ordinance were Ron Carter, Joe Griffiths, Brian Mayo, and Rick Sharp.

The Carmel Redevelopment Commission approved the proposed Performing Arts Center in the fall of 2004. With approval by City Council, plans for the Center can be finalized and this project can move forward.

"The outpouring of community support in favor of the Performing Arts Center was the key element in moving ahead with this vision for the City," according to Mayor Jim Brainard. He continued, "The Performing Arts Center will be unlike any other in the Midwest. As a dedicated world-class concert hall, it will serve as a cultural magnet and center for our new downtown."

A Message from the Mayor

This is an exciting time for the City. Pedcor Investments, a key City Center developer, announced it would increase its original $60 million investment more than $100 million, adding two stories to its signature buildings and sharply expanding housing, offices and retail shops. The empty field will soon become Carmel's downtown, filled with cultural, entertainment and retail opportunities. The city's innovative public private partnerships and commitment to best practices continues to make Carmel a great place to live and work.

In this issue of the newsletter, you will find many examples of the city's commitment to building a city that creates a strong sense of community. City planners are involved in an urban planning training initiative, the city's wastewater treatment facility has upgraded its treatment processes to be more cost effective and environment friendly, and several of our city employees have been recognized for their outstanding work. Summer is a busy time in Carmel. Check out the schedule for the Gazebo Summer concert series, enjoy Saturday mornings at the Carmel Farmers Market, and plan to attend Carmelfest 2005 festivities. I look forward to seeing you here.

As always, we appreciate your comments, suggestions and ideas. Feel free to call, write or email City Hall. We want to hear from you.

Very truly yours,

Jim Brainard

City Planning Leaders Attend Urban Design Initiative Training

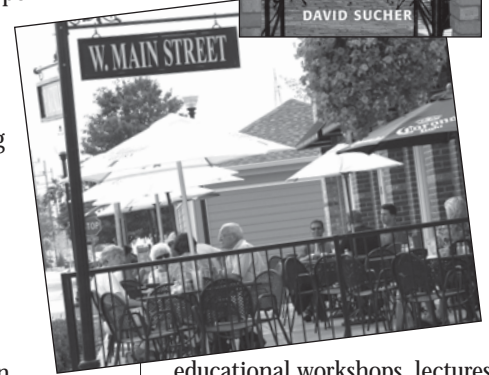

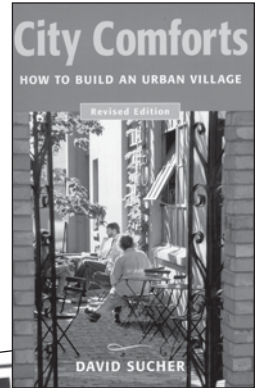

Creating a city where residents feel comfortable and have a strong sense of community is very important to the quality of life in Carmel.

To facilitate more informed and educated decisions regarding planning, zoning and redevelopment, city planning leaders are participating in urban design training workshops.

Adam Thies, from Eden Land and Design, was hired as a consultant to lead the new Urban Design Initiative, and made a presentation at the first training workshop. Attendees learned about alternative options for land use, density and the elements of urban design. The Urban Design Initiative includes continuous training, featuring educational workshops, lectures, and discussions and a field study tour to Chicago area communities.

"As our community continues to grow," said Mayor Jim Brainard, "the Urban Design Initiative will ensure all the groups involved in planning our city will have the same focus and speak the same language."

City Center Project Plans Grow Dramatically

The demolition of the Goodyear building in January, located at the southwest corner of Range Line Road and City Center Drive, marked the final step necessary to make way for the development of the City Center project. Coincidentally, just a month after the vacant building came down, Pedcor Investments, a key developer in Carmel's City Center, announced plans to dramatically increase its investment in the project.

As a result of the approval of the Performing Arts Center, Pedcor increased its investment more than $100 million. Compared with its initial plans, the developer increased retail space from 112,000 square feet to more than 170,000, or close to a quarter the size of Circle Center Mall in downtown Indianapolis. In addition to more retail space, the number of housing units went from 200 to more than 5,000. Office space was also increased, from 30,000 square feet to more than 60,000.

Later this year, Pedcor will break ground on the new City Center site. The construction should be complete in approximately three years.

As part of the new plan, the City will spend $10.7 million on infrastructure and 2,000 parking spaces all underground, which the City-owned Performing Arts Center would share. In May, the Carmel City Council approved an $80 million revenue bond to fund a new Performing Arts Center, which will also be located at City Center. "We are watching history in the making," said Mayor Brainard.

City to Begin Sewer Mapping Project

In June, the City began mapping the sewer system. The project will identify all storm sewers and their dimensions, inlets, pipes and outfalls, the direction of the storm sewer flows and the determination of illegal connections to the storm sewer system.

This is an important project in helping the City maintain its storm sewer structures. The digital map of the sewer system will help address drainage concerns and correct infrastructure problems. It will also assist the City in allowing new connections to the system.

Report a Polluter

The City of Carmel, as part of the Hamilton County Stormwater Pollution Prevention Program, is participating in the Report-A-Polluter Program. Citizens may report violations of stormwater pollution or dumping of pollutants into stormwater drains by calling 317-776-8495 or electronically completing a form at www.co.hamilton.in.us.

City Department News

Fire Department Uses New Training Technology

Members of the Carmel Fire Department are streaming training videos and live training sessions to all Carmel Firehouses through the City's computer network. This allows firefighters to participate in weekly, planned training sessions simultaneously without leaving their stations. The webcasting and streaming technologies also allow around-the-clock access to a library of topics.

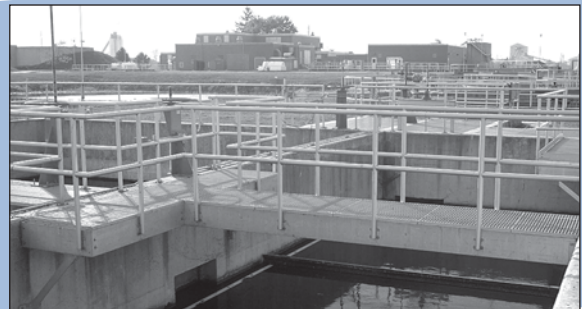

"This connectivity of educational materials ensures that every firefighter is equally trained and prepared to respond to any situation at any location."

Carmel Fire Department won the 6th annual Reggie Bowl Tournament this spring. Twelve Central Indiana fire departments and some local businesses participated in the event to raise money for the Hoosier Burn Camp.

Carmel Waste Water Treatment Plant Receives Certification

The City of Carmel Waste Water Treatment Plant received a class A certification from the Environmental Protection Agency for its improved treatment processes. It recently upgraded its treatment processes to produce class A sludge, a product better for the environment. The new treatment removes more pathogens using pasteurization. Unlike class B sludge, it can be used as top soil or compost blender in areas accessible to the general public. In addition, the Waste Water Treatment Plant hopes that the production of class A sludge will save money on hauling, monitoring and regulating the use of class B sludge.

Matt Griffin

Matt Griffin, an urban planner for the City of Carmel, was a winner in the national "Ideas Happen" contest for his invention, The Baker's Edge. Griffin is one of twelve contest winners who received a $25,000 prize. His invention is a unique baking pan designed to allow crispy edges on baked goods without drying out. To find out more information on Matt Griffin or The Baker's Edge, visit www.bakersedge.com.

Chaplain Davis Honored with Award

Reverend George Davis (left), Carmel Police Department Senior Chaplain, was honored with the 2004 Wilber C. Cunningham Award for Excellence in Law Enforcement Chaplaincy, an award given annually by the Indiana Region of the International Conference of Police Chaplains. Carmel Police Chief Mike Fogarty congratulates Rev. Davis on this honor.

Painted Violins Event to Benefit Carmel Symphony

The Carmel Symphony Orchestra (CSO) League and The Carmel Arts Council are organizing a unique fundraising opportunity, "A Marriage of Art and Music, The Painted Violins of Carmel Symphony Orchestra," to benefit the CSO in honor of its 30th anniversary.

Twelve local artists, including two Herron School of Art students, were chosen to paint violins, procured with the help of Mark Kurkowski of Frank's Violins, into "object d'arts." At a gala event in the fall, the violins will be auctioned to benefit the CSO.

Currently, sponsors are being sought to underwrite the project. To sponsor a violin, businesses or individuals are asked to donate $500. Artists and sponsors will be profiled in a beautiful booklet, which will be widely distributed to the public to pique interest in the charity gala and auction. In addition, violins will be on display in several public arenas with information about each artist and sponsor.

To find out more about becoming a sponsor, contact Jeanne Book at 317-846-1851 or Doreen Squire Ficara at 317-844-4989.

Carmel Youth Receives Multiple Awards for Exemplary Volunteerism

Carmel youth Daniel Kent, 16, a junior at Brebeuf, shown above with former Secretary of State General Colin Powell, received several national awards for his outstanding volunteer spirit. He founded Senior Connects—a nonprofit corporation that has collected $120,000 in funds and computer equipment, built or enhanced computer labs in more than 70 senior facilities, and taught basic email and Internet skills to hundreds of senior citizens.

His awards include the President's Volunteer Service

Award for Asian Pacific Americans presented by President Bush, and the Do Something BRICK Award, where he received a $5,000 scholarship and a $5,000 grant, and an opportunity to meet former President Bill Clinton. In addition, he was selected from a pool of 20,000 youth volunteers for The Prudential Spirit of Community Award.

"Daniel is an inspiring example of young Americans who care deeply about the needs of others and help meet those needs," said Arthur Ryan, Chairman and CEO of Prudential Financial, Inc.

City Hall has been a popular collection site for used computer equipment being donated to Senior Connects. "It is inspiring to see how Daniel's dedication to keeping seniors connected has encouraged the community to become more involved in this endeavor," said Mayor Jim Brainard. "He's an outstanding example to all of us."

Memorial Day Ceremony

The Carmel Clay Veterans Memorial Corporation (CCVMC) was formed to spearhead the development of a memorial in the City of Carmel to honor all veterans. The Freedom Circle Memorial is located off Third Avenue SW just east of the AMLI reflecting pool. Recently, a Veterans Day flag-raising ceremony and a Memorial Day program were conducted at the site to honor all the brave military personnel who served the country. The Memorial Day service was organized by Carmel, Clay and Creekside Middle Schools, The Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion Post.

A two-year fundraising campaign is underway to raise $750,000 to complete the memorial site, which includes a bronze military sculpture encircled by flags. Members of the community, businesses and organizations can purchase engraved brick pavers ($50 or $100) that will be placed in the walkway at the monument.

For more information about this project, go to www.ccvmc.org or call 317-848-1283.

Roadway Improvements

The City of Carmel is committed to keeping up with the growth in our community. In the spring, construction began on local, county and state roads and intersections to improve traffic flow and safety at intersections in the community.

US 31 Improvements

Although not part of the city's road improvements, the Indiana Department of Transportation (IDOT) is gearing up for the second of three phases of the US 31 Improvement Program. The environmental phase, Phase I, is complete. The final design phase, Phase II, is scheduled to begin in July.

Geotechnical crews will collect soil samples and conduct surveys along the corridor. Right-of-way property acquisition will begin as Phase II moves to the end of its completion and prior to Phase III. Phase III, road construction, is slated to begin in 2009.

The following road improvement projects are scheduled for 2005:

- Oak Ridge Road from 136th to 146th Streets
– In progress
- Gray Road from 96th to 106th Streets
– Currently under construction
- 116th Street from US31 to Spring Mill Road with roundabouts at Illinois Street and Spring Mill Road
– Currently under construction
- Ditch Road from 136th to 141st Streets with a roundabout at 136th Street
– Currently under construction
- Ditch Road from 141st to 146th Streets with a roundabout at 141st Street
– Starting late summer
- 131st Street from Spring Mill Road to Meridian Corners Boulevard with roundabouts at Spring Mill Road and Meridian Corners Boulevard
– Starting in the fall
- Spring Mill Road from 136th to 146th Streets with a roundabout at 141st Street
– Currently under construction
- Westfield Boulevard from 96th to 99th Streets with a roundabout at 96th Street
– Starting this summer

Roundabouts

Here are some tips to remember when driving the roundabouts.

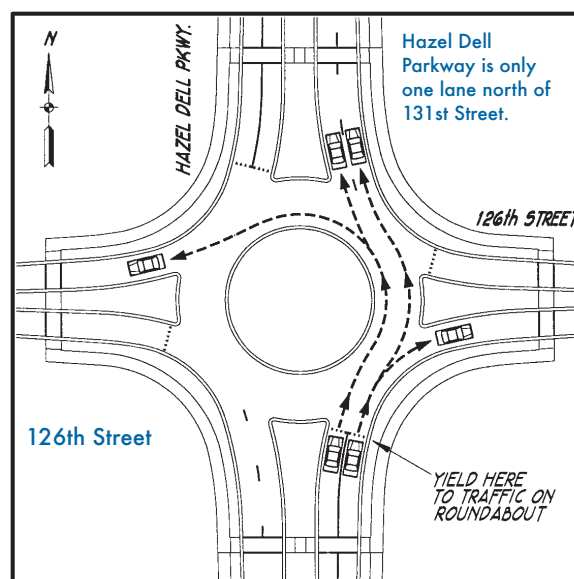

- All approaching traffic must yield to traffic in the roundabout.
- As you approach the roundabout, choose the appropriate lanes for turning right, going straight or turning left.
- Keep your car in the same lane as you enter and exit the roundabout.
- If you enter on the left, stay in the left lane on the roundabout.
- If you enter on the right, stay in the right lane on the roundabout.
- Buses, trucks and vehicles with trailers may need more than one lane on the roundabout.
- See diagrams for further clarification.

Roundabout Ahead signs advise that you are approaching a roundabout.

Yield signs along with line markings are placed at each approach road. Be prepared to stop at this point if there is not a safe gap in the traffic on the roundabout.

Pedestrian Crossing signs and line markings advise you of the location of pedestrian cross walks.

Roundabouts are safer than standard intersections because all the traffic flows through roundabouts at a moderate speed. If collisions do occur, they usually result in minor property damage. In contrast, at standard intersections collisions tend to be of a more serious nature because cars are traveling at a high rate of speed. Roundabouts also save the city an estimated $125,000, the cost of installing a stoplight.

"Tour De Carmel" Recognized for Best Special Program

Though the course did not finish on the Champs Elysees or wind through the spectacular forays of the Alps and the Pyrenees, the inaugural "Tour de Carmel" was a huge success in its own right. More than 900 cyclists participated in this event that won the Outstanding Special Program Award from the Indiana Parks and Recreation Association (IPRA).

This award honored outstanding contribution in providing a valuable program to the community. The event, geared toward families and fitness, consisted of a 20-mile bicycle route and a 5-mile bicycle route through the City of Carmel, highlighting various parks along the way. This year a 50-mile route has been added to the event.

"This award from IPRA is a tribute to the outstanding effort, creativity and dedication of the Carmel Clay Parks Board and staff," said Mark Westermeier, Director, Carmel Clay Parks and Recreation.

"This event increased awareness of Carmel's park system and trail connectivity throughout the City, while promoting bicycling," said Ron Carter, City Councilman and cycling enthusiast.

This year's Tour de Carmel event is scheduled for Saturday, September 17th. Registration will start this summer. Call 848-7275 or visit the parks website at www.carmelclayparks.com for registration dates.
